What makes someone or something historically significant? People and events in the past have historical significance if they created change that affected many people over time, or if they revealed something about larger issues in history or the present day. Choose an Indigenous individual who fits the parameters of the Historical Significance Criteria and create a Facebook profile page. Find out more about this person to fill out the details of this blank page. Choose 4 'Friends' for your chosen person (e.g., another notable Indigenous person that he or she might have known) and then 'Like' 4 things that he or she might have enjoyed. Be sure to write 4 wall posts that show times where she or he demonstrated their significance.
